

The Ecole Centrale Paris at Paris-Saclay:
Presentation of the architectural and urban development project

(Châtenay-Malabry, September 26, 2012) – Following the nomination on July 27, 2012 of the OMA Consultancy, managed by Rem Koolhaas, as the winner of the combined architectural and urban development competition for the installation of the Ecole Centrale Paris on the Paris-Saclay campus,

The Ecole Centrale Paris et Paris-Saclay Public Authority invite you to come and discover:

- the future buildings of the Ecole Centrale, the architectural project designed to create the School of the 21st. century – accessible and in harmony with communal spaces and the world;
- the Joliot-Curie quarter of the Paris-Saclay campus. Located on the Plateau de Moulon, this urban development aims to introduce and develop areas for joint, mixed and compact living areas around the École Centrale Paris.

How will the synergies between Centrale, the neighboring establishments (Supélec, ENS Cachan, University of Paris Sud...) and the Moulon quarter be created, thanks to the architectural project submitted?

How will the Ecole Centrale and other elements in this urban program be welcomed and organized in the Joliot-Curie quarter?

How will attractive, lively living areas bringing together students, staff and inhabitants be conceived?

In the presence of:

- Hervé Biauxser, Director of the Ecole Centrale Paris;
- Pierre Veltz, President and CEO of the Paris-Saclay Public Authority;
- Clément Blanchet, Director of OMA France;
- Georges Chaudron de Courcel, President of the Ecole Centrale Paris Foundation

Wednesday, October 3, 2012 at 11:00 a.m.

La Maison des Centraliens – La Maison Champs Elysées
8 Rue Jean Goujon, 75008 Paris

Presentations followed by a cocktail
